Thomas MacDonagh Heritage Centre Cloughjordan

Sunday 24th January at 8.00pm

The sixties of the 20th century were for Ireland years of change, rediscovery and renewal. And this came about in a complex way, involving politics and poetry, theology and television, economics and education. Heralding the new decade, the Gael Linn film Mise Eire came as a timely reminder to a new generation of the creative tension that can and must exist between past and present, between history and prophesy. And in the score of the film, the musical genius of Sean O'Riada gave us an old song for a new era.."- Sean Mac Reamoinn
